In everyday life, people often use "argument" to mean a quarrel between people. But in logic and critical thinking, an argument is a list of statements, one of which is the conclusion and the others are the premises or assumptions of the argument. Before proceeding, read this page about statements. To give an argument is to provide a set of premises as reasons for accepting the conclusion.

Secondly, all of the argument's premises are true. Then the argument is sound, and is, therefore, good. For example: Liliane is Patrick's sister, and Patrick is Sylvie's brother. Therefore, Liliane is Sylvie's sister. Otherwise, you may have a non-deductive argument, in which case the argument is either strong or weak.

Good and bad arguments - Logical and Critical Thinking

Logic is the science of how to evaluate arguments and reasoning. Critical thinking is a process of evaluation which uses logic to separate truth from falsehood, reasonable from unreasonable beliefs. If you want to better evaluate the various claims, ideas, and arguments you encounter, you need a better understanding of basic logic and the process of critical thinking.
