Roman's didn't do their woodworking in a garage designed for cars (and sized as such), so their woodworking space was based on woodworking needs, not limited by how many cars it would hold. 3. Roman's probably did all or most of their woodworking on the bench, where we use table saw, planer, jointer, sanders, shapers/routers, etc. Oh, and yes, their woodworkers were quite possibly ...

So I'll have to use the Smithsonian version to talk about the Estonian-Roman woodworking connection. Viires' work, whether it was conscripted by foreign governments or not, is a remarkable glimpse into the pre-Industrial works in Estonia in the 20 th century. It was a corner of the world where traditional skills and tools were still in daily use. Of particular interest to me, of course ...

Roman Benches II | Popular Woodworking Magazine

Woodworking was essential to the Romans. It provided, sometimes the only, material for buildings, transportation, tools, and household items. Wood also provided pipes, dye, waterproofing materials, and energy for heat.: 1 Although most examples of Roman woodworking have been lost,: 2 the literary record preserved much of the contemporary knowledge.
